Interview with Ryan Sabotage & Brian Penbianco

Who made the video?

Me, (Ryan Sabotage) and Penny (Brian Panebianco). I did the primary editing, penny did a lot of the filming. A lot of other people submitted footage as well.

What's the craziest thing you ever seen at love?

I showed up a half hour after a lady bum stabbed another lady bum. Blood was everywhere. We filmed them arguing the day before. There were too many crazy things that I've seen there.

Are bums annoying?

Noo, not at all. For the most part they're pretty chill. Bums do there own thing. They don't bother you too much. You see some pretty depressing shit at Love though. I mean, seriously some bummer shit. Can't avoid seeing it even if you tried. Sometimes.

Ever been caught at love? What happened?

Nope.

I've never been caught at love, been "kicked" outta love for "suspicious activity" because I was filming cops. City hall I've always had bad luck with. Love's easy, real barricaded. City hall, I feel out "in the open" too much. Harder to run I think personally. I think the exact opposite. Love park is so much harder to run from because the only thing you can do is run into the street, city hall had a lot more stairs and its hard for bike cops to get up and down them fast if there on your tail. Also there is easy access to the underground.

Tell me a little about what's in the video besides skating?
It has a lot of flashing nostalgic NES game play in it, along with TV commercial/news shots I filmed while trippin' on Nyquil. Bums being bums, graffiti writers writing on shit.
The box smells like the inside of a new car. The older dvd boxes used to smell like beef jerky.

What's it like skating on the east coast
Sucks, but I love it. It's pretty amazing what I've seen done on some of the shittiest spots.
Neither one of us has been out west so I think we like the east so much because its all we know. I would personally love to see what the west coast is all about but I do know east coast footage looks way sicker... in my opinion.

How does Philly compare to NYC, for skating or in general?
I love the NY skate scene. People are nice, cops aren't chasing you out of spots, its really sick. Shame I don't go there more often. You feel safer skating NY spots than you do skating Philly spots.
NYC is huge, you can't hit all the main spots in one day. Also NY has a bunch of good skate parks and plazas, Philly has nothing like that, yet.

How do you feel about skate parks?
Ehh.. I mean, there good except for them piss poor recycled plastic boxes and ramps assembled in shitty run down tennis courts.

How is Philly skating changing?
It changes all the time. Love used to be good back in the day, love died... 2008 was a big year for Philly skateboarding, City hall was fully back and love park was poppin' almost everyday. It was almost like the city actually realized it had better things to worry about. Now it's back to being pretty strict and I've recently seen undercovers lurkin. Should be good in the winter though.

Modern Needs
Interview with Ray Gurz
photos: Max Zhradnik

Who made the video?
The mastermind behind this project was Max Zahradnik.

How long did it take?
It has been almost 3 years since the 1st video. We made the trailer last Focus tradeshow to show we were still around.

What did you do for the premier?
I couldn't find any venues that weren't booked. I found a very old VFW building and the owner's kids skated, so we just did it there. Thanks to Sean and Steve Cameron for supplying the huge screen.

What was up with all those TVs in the front?
Max and I live by doing shit different. We were supposed to do a huge pile of them and have the projector in the middle. Art?

Did you go on any overboard spot missions?
Max discovered a underground tunnel. That visit was very dope.

What are some of your favorite skate videos?
The toy machine videos, Video Days, it really depends on my mood. An anti hero video will always get me going. Old consolidated vids. Shit, a h-street video I have on VHS does the trick as well.

What kind of music is in the video?
I didn't want your typical old 70's retro songs, or like Arcade Fire indie bullshit. Videos are so boring these days. I am not saying they are not good. Just, I'm not into the polished masterpiece. In Modern Needs, we used some underground bands that most people don't even care about. For this project, I really wanted to use NOISE bands, because that's what I listen to before I get to a spot anyway. It sounds like your car is going to explode. Your speakers are going to blow out. Straight up static.

What parts were you excited about?
Everyone on the team pushed it for the video. we are a fucking small brand who most don't give a shit about because the HYPE train hasn't picked us up.

How glad are you that the video's done?
I can't express how awesome Max did on it. it is nice to go to this kids crusty lair and work on the video, pick out music and then we have a premiere.

Last words?
Thanks for the interview. I'm stoked on Skate Jawn just because you dudes like skating and want to do a zine. Making the effort is rad as hell.

Life is life. Go with the flow.

Where you from?

Red Bank, NJ.

What are your favorite skate videos? Why?

"Free Your Mind" is one of my favorite videos ever. The whole taxi concept is tight and all those dudes rip. Back in the day I used to watch "Photosynthesis" on repeat. East coast shit is awesome.

Do you like filming?

Yeah I'm down with filming. It's always fun to see what kind of clips you and your homies can stack.

Tell me about any videos you've been in.

My homies and I made a video called "Loads of Great!" about a year and a half ago. All my friends from back home are really stoked on ketchup, so were making this new jawn called "Pass that Chup".

How often do you watch skate videos? Hours per week?

I watch some skateboarding every day. 420 hours per week.

What video have you seen recently that got you hyped?

I just saw the 2d edit of that new Krooked vid. I really liked how the parts go by city instead of skater. It was a way more fun video to watch, it didn't look like people were stressing on how many flippy dippys they could do in one grind, and all those dudes have awesome style.

413 video

interview w/ david nelson-hospers

What's this video all about? What can we expect to see in it?

We're just a bunch of kids from the 413 doin' what we've been doin'. Holdin' it down and keepin' it real. We love skateboarding.

Where was the majority of this video filmed?

Every clip is from The Pioneer Valley.

Has skating in the Valley changed since you started skating here?

When we were kids we had a handful of amazing spots that are no longer skate-able. So now we go out in the cuts and find shit to work with.

Who's the crew in the video?

Garret Daly, Noah McManus, David Nelson-Hospers, Jeff Kellogg, Tom Gorelik, Anthony Mejias, Madabi Martinez, Kozo Cavalcanti, Sean Sawicki, Zachary Kaufman and a whole lot of homies we even got a clip of Karlin.

The music in the video's pretty unique, what's the deal with that?

The video uses tracks from two albums, The Sidewalk/Somethin' To Spit On by Code Green and Greatest Lips by Azwan Badruzaman. Both are 413 born and raised. The music mirrors us and our skateboarding perfectly.

I hear you guys had a few major setbacks making this video, what happened?

, we had this video plus a hundred tapes from as far back as 2003 imported and labeled and then Noah's laptop and external HD got stolen which put us back to square one. That was after the computer had already crashed and we'd lost everything once. It took us all moving across the country to finally get it done.

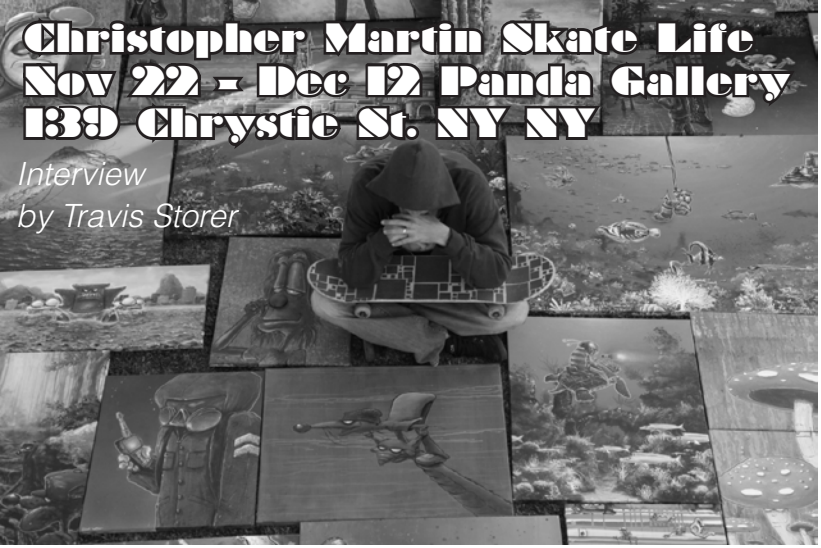
Any crazy spot missions or shit go down while you were filming this?

Well, we inhabited an abandoned warehouse nearby, swept a couple inches of grime off the ground and , made a flawless park purely out of shit we found in the warehouse complex. We made this hip out of all scrap wood, found these perfect plastic ledges and manny pads. It was a perfect winter getaway but some little fucks found out about it and blew it up, next thing you know garrets life is getting threatened by two meth heads with a pitbull. So yeah, we stopped going there. Its all boarded up now anyways..

Peep the video up on the Internet and all that shit. Much love N.S. represent. Peace.

Christopher Martin Skate Life Nov 22 - Dec 12 Panda Gallery 139 Chrystie St. NY NY

Interview by Travis Storer



Tell me what's going on with this show you got going on right now in NYC?

The show is called SKATE LIFE. It is a collection of images that represent the last five years I've spent skateboarding and shooting all over the world. The show is in the lower east side of Manhattan at PANDA gallery (139 Chrystie st). It will be up from November 22 to December 22.

Do you have photos from all the places you've gone on tour with Natural Koncept and other people?

Yeah the bulk of my images come from all the tours that I have been on with Natural Koncept for sure. I pulled images from the East and West coast tours as well as Mexico City and Spain Trips. The rest are mostly my homies shredding NYC and the Northeast.

Is there any theme that you're running with for the show?

I don't really have a theme. I just tried to put together the rawest images that I feel represent the core and heart of Skateboarding.

Other than this art show what else have you been working on?

I'm currently filming for my video part for Natural Koncept's Polygamy that will be coming out early 2011. But for the most part just trying to skate and shoot as much as I can.

Where else can people see work from you if they can't make it to the show while the exhibit's up?

The Transworld skateboarding website has all the tours, trips and contests I've covered. Also the LevilUniform Magazine site. My flickr www.cmartphotto.com and my blog www,bestlifevercmart.blogspot.com. CHECK IT!!!!!!!

The people over at Natural Koncepts have brought you on trips in the past do you plan on traveling more with them or anyone else in the future?

NK ALL DAY!!! we have a world tour coming up next year that I'm hyped on. I'm down to go on trips with other people but as of now no opportunities have come up. I'm headed to Hartford this weekend to skate a secret spot with the shut/ Skate Lair crew that is described by Eric Munday from Skate Lair as "wallos on CRACK" So SICK!!!

Would you like to thank anyone that's helped you out with this show or anyone in general?

I would love to thank all the sponsors for the show. Undergrind.tv, NEFF, Blades Board and Skate, Pull-In underwear, Transworld Skateboarding Magazine, GoodWood, Natural Koncept, Drive-In studios NYC, Dan and Joe at Panda Gallery, my art director DIRK For designing the flyer and posters and Travis Storer and Skate Jawn for There support and the opportunity to have this interview.

East Coast Love

Brick ride up, brick ledge, brick banks, brick landing, it all sounds and feels awesome. If there was a brick skatepark I'd go. The click clack sounds when you ride make it seem like you go faster. Feeling every little bump beneath your feet, lets you feel the texture of what your riding. And life is all about texture.

Kyle made Totally Nector before moving to San Francisco to chase down the American Dream. It's a video with two sets of skate rat brothers, lots of good friends, and no parents.

With the video all wrapped up I can't help but to say how rewarding it feels to finally have a video out for everyone to see. It seems there are too many homie videos that never come out, the footage gets stale and no one gets to see it. We're just happy to have something out there and available for anyone to stone to.

The premier was awesome! A room packed with skate rats, and a couple chicks. USA chants, Beers flying, fireworks igniting, confetti in the air, indeed a gnarly night. Djerk played an awesome show after the video. Everyone got even more wild and moshed till the cops busted in, and depressed everyone.

'The Pie' is a homie video of epic proportions; a beer and blood fueled skateboard extravaganza that only our twisted minds would conjure up. The video features the skateboarding of Bill Marshall, John Cruz, Adrian Vega, Chris Cusmano, Matt Eaton, Chris Rozborski, Bill Spice, Dillon Constantine, and Nico Maglhaes all over New Jersey as well as other places around the country. We had plans to make this video for years, but up until recently it was a mere pipe dream probably brought on by a hangover. It is just a video of pure fun, get out there with your friends and skate, skate video. There was not one dull moment while filming or putting it together. Go to shrednj.blogspot.com for more information and to pick up a copy; you will not be disappointed.
